The Problem

Most students graduate with real talent but without the tools or guidance to prove it to employers in a competitive job market.

Scaling Career Support

Career teams do exceptional work. But even the best team cannot give every student the individual, ongoing support they need when you have a small team and a growing student body.

Telling Their Story

Students have advanced skills but struggle to communicate them. Translating academic experience into a CV that speaks to a specific employer is something most have never been taught.

Finding the Right Fit

Students apply without knowing if they truly match a role. This leads to wasted effort and graduates ending up in jobs outside their field of study — a frustrating outcome for both students and the university.

Lack of Real-Time Data

Without real-time data on applications, engagement, and outcomes, careers teams are working without a clear picture. Most reporting is manual and months behind.

We Know This Problem Because We Lived It

Jobcamp was founded by people who spent years inside universities across the UK, Ireland and Internationally, experiencing firsthand the gap between graduating and finding the right career.

The Founder's Journey

- Students with real talent who could not communicate it to employers.
- Careers teams stretched too thin to reach every student who needed help.
- No reliable way to know which students were struggling until it was too late.

Institutions where we saw this firsthand

We did not build Jobcamp to enter a market. We built Jobcamp because we were those students.

OUR MISSION

To make sure every student's talent ends up where it belongs.

Help students tell their story.

Give every student the tools to present their skills and experience in a way that resonates with the right employer.

Connect talent to the right opportunity.

Match students to roles that fit their field across Ireland and beyond — not just any open position.

Put a career agent in every student's pocket.

Personal, AI-powered support available to every student, not just those who walk through the careers office door.

Give careers teams a clear picture.

Real-time data on student activity, applications, and outcomes so nothing is missed and no one falls behind.

Reach every student, not just the ones who ask.

Support every student individually without adding to the workload of the careers team.

THE COMPETITION

THE PROBLEM

Why Existing Platforms Fall Short

These platforms offer narrow tools in isolation — CV reviews or job boards, never a full experience. Students find them clunky and stop using them.

Jobcamp covers the full career journey in one place, built entirely around the student experience.

Full Career Journey

CV, cover letters, job matching, coaching and tracking in one place.

The Freelance Writer role at IAPWE is a lateral move in terms of writing focus but a step back in seniority and compensation compared to your current Head of Product/Technical Lead position. It offers more flexibility and a chance to broaden your topic expertise, though you'll give up leadership scope and higher strategic impact.

100%

Your resume is well-formatted for Applicant Tracking Systems.

- Proven ability to produce finance and technology articles that boost traffic (e.g., 35% organic growth).
- Extensive experience managing content calendars and coordinating freelancers to meet 100% on-time delivery.

Career Insights

This role represents a lateral move from a Senior Product Manager position into a Senior Customer Success Manager role. While you are maintaining your seniority level, you are pivoting from product development to customer-facing operations. This is a strategic shift that leverages your technical background but requires you to adapt your focus from building features to driving adoption and retention. It is a logical step if you want to move closer to the revenue-generating side of the business, though you will need to demonstrate that your product experience translates well into the specific demands of client relationship management and international account scaling.

FOR STUDENTS

Cover Letter Generator

Jobcamp helps every student tell their story with impact. For each application, it crafts a personalised cover letter that connects their background and motivations directly to the role, so every application makes an impression from the first line.

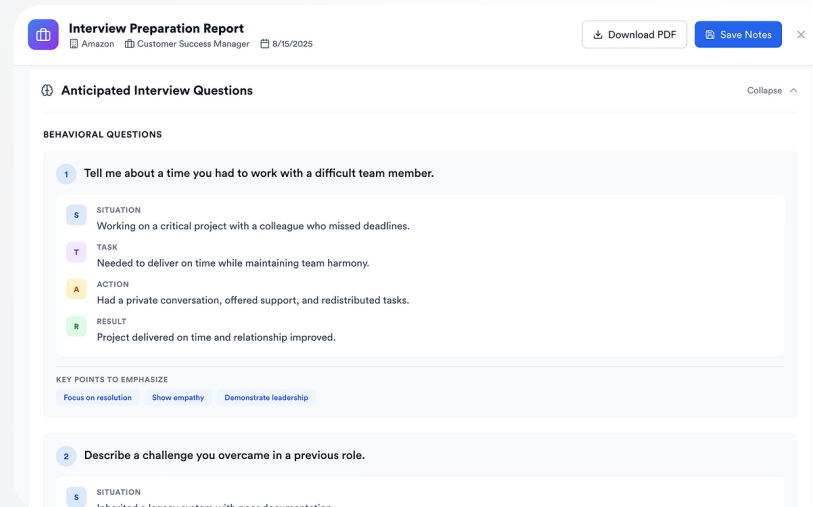

Dear Hiring Manager,

I Alex, a full-stack developer with experience in building scalable web applications, am applying for the Senior Developer position at TechCorp. I have been drawn to the innovative approach of TechCorp in tackling complex technical challenges. Your commitment to pushing the boundaries of what's possible in software development aligns perfectly with my professional goals.

FOR STUDENTS

Interview Preparation

Before every interview, Jobcamp produces a personalised interview prep report — covering the company, likely questions based on the job description, and guidance on how to answer them well.
